All right, and then I'm gonna share my screen as well.

Okay. One moment.

Okay.

Oops. There it is. Can you guys see my screen? Okay, cool. So there's supposed to be a couple more people, but I'm gonna start, um, since they're not here. This is a really small group and this is going to be an Astrocartography session and the theme will be on love. So without further ado, let's get started.

'cause there's a lot to go through. How many of you guys have heard of Astrocartography? Okay, cool. That's great. Um, so Astrocartography is a branch of astrology that is more modern and it maps out your chart over a map of the world. So your natal chart has a bunch of placements in it that are informed by the moment of your birth.

So there's this very unique imprint that you have with you, Celeste, Chile. What we can do with astrophotography is we could take a planet that is located in a very specific and fixed place. And we can move it to a new place, and that activates the planet in a new and different way. In Astrocartography, we are dealing with four big areas, and you can think of these four areas as a compass.

Also to the new people who just joined. Do you guys mind turning on your camera so I can see you guys?

I will in just one second. I'm just not proper yet. No worries. So these four areas are the midheaven, which represents our career and public life. The I Coli, which represents the home and private life, the descendant, which represents relationships and marriage contracts as well as open enemies. So people who we have like visible or open conflict with.

And then the ascendant represents our self and identity, our appearance. So these are like directions on a compass. And Astrocartography can move planets to these points to activate them if that is our goal. So if your goal is to improve your visibility at work, we can place a planet like the sun near the midheaven and that can give us something to work with energetically speaking.

The way that we do it here at Frus is through Feng Shui, which will be our next segue. What you learn here, you can apply in your feng shui course. So is everybody clear at least on this bit here with these four angles, four directions?

Does that sound good? Okay, cool.

All right. Let me just mute that person. Cool. So we have career home relationships self easy enough to remember. Now here's a little bit more insight on the angles. So there are compass. Compass, yes, but they're also a bit like a clock. They represent different times of day. The ascendant is where the sun rises.

And I don't mean your sun, like for example, if you're a Pisces Sun, it doesn't have anything to do with that. It's just a cannon. So it represents, um, a metaphor. The ascendant is where the sun rises. So this is about something emerging. It's almost like birth right, so it's very bright. And it's expanding, slowly expanding, clarifying.

The descendant is the opposite point of the ascendant, and this is the sunset. So this is where things are becoming more dim when things decline in power and energy. The midheaven is noon. So this is when the sun is culminating and at its most powerful stage, and it's very, very bright. The Im Coli is midnight.

It's where the sun is invisible and hidden, but if you think of the globe when it's dark, when it's midnight where you are. It means that the sun is below you, right? So you can kind of think of the, IM Coli also as like the ground and the midheaven is the sky. So the midheaven has this really high and changeable energy because the sky is unstable and the I immune coli has a very stable.

Unchanging energy because it's like the ground. It's considered like subterranean, kind of like a hypo gm, like a burial ground. And so the Indium coli also has to do with ancestors and things that come from the past. And the midheaven has to do with the future or things that we kind of call in. You can think of the midheaven as how we're remembered, which is why it represents our reputation.

And you can think of the Im Coli as what we remember, which is why it represents our memory and ancestors and family and property and things like that. So, um, does that all make sense? Okay. And then a, a few more things to note here is that there are two nocturnal angles and two diurnal angles, right? So like midnight and sunset are considered nocturnal and so they kind of diminish in power.

And the diurnal angles are the ascendant and the midheaven, which are like gaining power. All of these angles are really powerful. All of them, but two of them are nocturnal and two of them are diurnal. So there's all of these like kind of layered meanings with all of these things. And everything is centered around the ascendant.

The ascendant is the helm or the beginning of the chart. So everything in your natal chart either supports or is averse to the self to, to the helm of the chart. And out of the four angles, the descendant and the ic, the immune coli are, they're not averse. They're not averse to the ascendant because they make a cross or a square with it.

So they're very much in contact at the juncture, they of the ascendant, but they are more averse or they wane away from the ascendant. So that's why the Midheaven has a more powerful quality. And the I Coline and the descendant have a little bit of more of a waning quality. Does that make sense?

Okay. So here's a little bit more on the angles we have at the chart here. I'm sure you guys have looked at this before. The four angles, as you can see, can make a cross right here, the first, fourth, seventh, and 10th house. Are roughly the areas where the angles will fall, but the midheaven up here and the IC down here can fall anywhere between these three houses, so anywhere between the ninth and 11th, anywhere between the third and fifth, and each one of these houses has a completely different quality.

The ninth house has a subtle quality. The 10th house has an active quality. The 11th house has a stabilizing quality. The third house has a subtle quality. The fourth house has an active quality, and the fifth house has a stabilizing quality. So that will also flavor or layer in more meaning when we interpret where your planet falls, if it falls along these angles.

Does that make sense? So when we relocate your chart, we relocate them to these angles specifically. Okay. Does this make sense you guys? Everyone following along? It's just a lot of information. So I wanna be, I wanna be thorough and make sure that everybody is following along.

Okay. Oh, you have a question? Yeah. Yeah, I have a question. So when you're mentioning that the, so Mc Midheaven can be within the nine, 10th and 11, so it, I, I'm just, uh, so I, that's what I'm trying to understand a little bit in terms of like, like it, does that mean that means like the midheaven It wouldn't, it doesn't necessarily have to be.

On your 10th house, um mm-hmm. It may be on your ninth house or your 11th house. It just depends on the degree of your ascendant. So everyone's rising sign is gonna be in a different degree. So you could be a Pisces rising two degrees, or you could be a Pisces rising 12 degrees, or you could be a Pisces rising 29 degrees and that degree will determine where the Midheaven falls.

Because it's, it's a cross, it's an exact cross. So if your ascendant is 29 degrees, your midheaven will be 29 degrees, but that might kind of fall across different houses. Does that make sense? I see. So it doesn't necessarily have to be like, because of the, like, if you're looking at it through like a whole, like, um, whole signs, like you're, you're always looking at the angles that, that might mm-hmm.

Uh, might modify though. Yeah. Okay. Yeah, so for everybody, also, a whole sign is an algorithm that you can use. There's a Platy algorithm, there's a whole sign algorithm, equal house algorithm, caulk algorithm. There's a lot of different algorithms that is, it is basically just different math. For how to draw the chart and in whole sign based on the math of whole sign, which is the most ancient math for, for astrology.

The midheaven can fall anywhere between those houses. And because the midheaven and the IC are an axis, they're gonna move together like this. So, um, alright, let's, uh, move to the planets. So. We understand that Astrocartography is a way of working with these four major angles, representing identity, others, public spheres and private spheres, or career and home life in modern terms.

And these four angles can get activated by placing different planets on them, right? Simple enough. These are the meanings of the planet. So if you have a goal or if you have, uh, something that you want to work on and you're like, well, okay, I know that I wanna improve my love life, for example, or I know that I really want to like meet a partner, um, you know that you would be working with Venus.

Venus has to do with those themes. Maybe you're someone who really wants to improve your business, right? Just your savviness in general and get a better taste for what your interests are and what your hobbies are and like what you enjoy spending your time on. Then you, you'd work with Mercury if you want to improve your home life or buy property or something like that, then you'd work with the moon.

If you wanna improve your self-confidence, then you'd work with the sun. And you can place this planet, whichever planet you choose on one of these four angles. And the tone of that will slightly shift depending on what angle you choose to work with. So we have a couple of, uh, elements we're working with here in this equation.

So you guys can save this. Take a screenshot of this. I mean, it's very simple breakdown. We will be specifically focusing on Venus today, but I didn't wanna leave anything out of the cannon. So now that we know we're working with Venus, here's a little bit about Venus. So in astrology, specifically in traditional astrology, there are certain planets that are considered benefic and maleic.

A benefic planet is a planet that has mostly positive themes, mostly good themes. So we, if we were to refer back to this table here or this list, Venus is the planet of love, pleasure, beauty, luxury, connections, learning, art and money, kind of all the things that we like in life, right? All the things that make us feel good and whole and complete.

So. If you wanna work with Venus, right? If you wanna find love, or if you wanna like improve your finances, or if you wanna improve your creativity, or if you wanna learn something and you wanna just feel like you're investing your time into something that you find like valuable, that is within the scaffolding of venus's themes, right?

So like something to do with like beauty or art or education. Those are all of the things that Venus really focuses on. Then does that just mean Okay, well let's just put Venus on the midheaven and great. Perfect. No, not exactly. Also, sorry for a moment. Can I have the people who have their cameras turned off just um, turned on?

Unless, you know, there's something going on, I don't know. But it would be nice to see everyone's faces. Um, so does it mean if we put Venus on the Midheaven that like, okay, great, we we figured it out, we cracked the code. No, it's not that simple. And I think a lot of discourse on Astrocartography is it, it, it can waiver towards superficial because it misses this big element of, well, what sign is Venus in?

'cause you're not working with a blank slate. You know, you're, you're really working with, uh, Venus in a condition, so Venus is strong in certain signs and not as strong in other signs. But does that mean that Venus, that, that you are weak because Venus is weak? No. What it means is that. Venus is going to express itself in a surprising or unexpected way.

We have to remember that astrology and mo most of its definitions apart from the generational planets like Uranus, Pluto, and Neptune come from thousands and thousands and thousands and thousands of years ago. And so we have to recall that astrology, this is a sociological thing. Why do we use astrology?

Why? For for what reason? What's the reason, right? We use astrology now as a tool of self-actualization.

Ancient people used astrology as a way of understanding one's standing in society, and so most of the people who were defining these things weren't countercultural rebels who disagreed with the law of the land. The people who defined astrology were people who were in lofty classes. They were in educated classes and academic classes, so they were likely wealthy, educated.

People were wealthy. So specifically Hellenistic astrology, which is the kind of astrology that we're working with. Right. And even Vedic to some extent. Help to really like, define people within casts. Hellenistic astrology was developed in a castless society, in a, in a society where there could be upward mobility.

But we do have to remember that as astrology was defined by people in upper classes. So much of these definitions come from how well adjusted you are in society. So we have to really consider class consciousness, right? We have to really understand like the economic and political and cultural tapestry that we're living in.

As we're considering this idea of weakness, deity, whether a planet is doing well or not well, right? Like who's defining these things. And we have to also remember that astrology was defined largely by men. So a lot of these definitions are also quite patriarchal. And the cool thing about practicing astrology today is we get to.

Create new meaning at the intersections of our present innovations and developments, and also things that have stood the test of time and endured. So I just wanted to kind of say that piece because I think this concept of like a weak Venus or a debilitated Venus or whatever, it can be like really scary.

And it's like a lot of people have debilitated Venus. A lot of people have like a weak Venus. A lot of people have like bad aspects to their Venus. A normal part of life. You know, I just wanted to kind of give that precursor, okay, so if your Venus is not in a happy sign, right, or like in a good condition, it just means, okay, well are there things in society that are working against me here a little bit.

Also, it's dispositional and it has to do with personality as well, right? Identity. But we are a product of like our nature and our nurture. So we also consider history in this, in this re regard, right? Like what are we inheriting from our, from our family? What are we inheriting from our environment, from our culture, and how does that inform how Venus functions?

For example, you could have grown up in a very specific environment, right? But then maybe you had to move and so the Venus stuff, right? That would've made sense had you stayed in that location. But you, but that wasn't part of your destiny. Part of your destiny was to move. And so your Venus is going to function, be more non-normative in this new location.

Right? And so that's part of your story is like, oh, I have this debilitated Venus. Well, I'm not, I'm, I have been acculturated, or I was raised within a culture that embraced these values, and suddenly I'm overseas, or I'm in a new place where the values are super different. And so that could be a reflection of a debilitated Venus, right?

It doesn't necessarily mean like, oh shit, I have a Venus and Scorpio or Aries, like, I'm fucked. It could just mean in your life story something happened where your inherited values don't match up to where you currently are. That's just one example. Right. Okay, so can everybody tell me where their Venus is?

You can drop it in the chat or you can like just say it.

Pisces. Okay, so those are both considered. Um, like good venous placements, Pisces and, and Libra, those are considered like nice venous placements. Venus and Aquarius is considered Peregrine. Peregrine translates to like neutral or ambivalent. Um, Venus in Aries is considered like debilitated or like a weak Venus.

Um, so. Car Tica, uh, the, the Venus sign. So instead of the house, just the Venus sign would be great. Yeah. So we have kind of like a mix, right? We have like two Venuses that are considered like good. And then we have two Venuses that are one, one Venus, um, that's considered bad. And then one Venus that's considered kind of neutral.

Is there anyone else who wants to share their. Venus sign.

Okay. Thank you guys for sharing. Just wanted to show the kind of diverse, and it's obviously not that simple.

So moving on, let's put these things together. So. What does it mean to work with Venus with the different angles, right? So say we want our love life to improve. We could put Venus on the descendant, right? Simple, but what sign is Venus in? Like what will that actually draw in? This is where we have to approach Astrocartography in a very integrated and holistic way.

It's not just about placing Venus. On your descendant and then crossing your fingers and saying, great, you know you, yes, you can look at a location that could attract a partner. Maybe your partner comes from that location. Maybe this location could be a place where you meet someone. Maybe this location could be a place where your partner's heritage is from.

Maybe this location is. A place that on a more detached plane, right? And this is where we kind of go into feng shui that you could use like on an altar in, in, in magic core ritual work, where you could look at this location and say, okay, I maybe my Venus lands on my descendant in Cairo. That's just an example.

So I can draw images from Cairo and place it on my altar, and maybe on new, a new Moon, I'm trying to manifest like a partner. And I have this image connected to Cairo, which is where my like Venus seventh house line is. Does that make sense? But at the same time, we gotta know what's going on with Venus.

Some of you guys had like Venus and Libra and Venus and Pisces, this overall means your Venus is more stable. So I would give you the green light to work with Venus freely without much concern. People who have a more debilitated Venus, right, like Carlos has Venus and Aries, I would. I would have to work more closely with Carlos to be like, okay, what does Venus and Aries mean for you?

Because if you use Venus and Aries to like manifest a partner, then you have to really consider, okay, well what am I really manifesting? Because a Venus and Aries person is gonna have a little bit more obstacles or even a more the the, you have to know basically, like if you are. Manifesting a partner with a debilitated Venus.

You can't be someone who wants something normal. You, you have to know that your Venus symbolizes something non-normative, counter-cultural, unexpected, rebellious, strange, unique. And so if you're someone who wants this super stable thing, I'm like, don't work with Venus. 'cause a Venus and Aries won't manifest this stable, normal thing for you.

It can manifest something really cool, but you also have to want something really cool. And unexpected and strange and weird. You can't want the normal thing because your Venus is not normal, which is like great. I love not normal. I love strange. I love unique, I love queer, you know? Yes, yes. You're raising your hand.

Um, hi. Um, good evening. I have a quick question just to make sure how, what's the best way to know where my penis is located? I just Googled it and did like a quick little chart. Oh yeah. So are you looking at your natal chart right now? Um, yeah, I just went up on Google and um, I went to Venus Sign Calculator.

So it says Venus in Scorpio, but it doesn't say the house. Oh, well you should look at your whole natal chart. So. In the future when you're, you should have your natal chart prepared. Um, for this, everyone should just have their natal chart prepared for this so we can freely discuss in the future. I would go on like astro.com and I would run your whole, um, natal chart so that you can see everything together.

You put in your birth time, birthday, and place of birth, and it'll give you the whole wheel. And the wheel should look like this. And then this is the symbol for Venus right here. Okay. So this, so this wheel, I emptied it of everything because we're dealing with Venus. But this is the symbol for Venus, the glyph for Venus.

And this is the sign. So this is Aquarius. This is Venus, and it's gonna take some time to memorize these if you wanna memorize them. But yeah, this is Venus. This is um, Aquarius, and this is 18 degrees. So this, the wheel should look like this. And then you should have a bunch of planets in here, and that's how you'll find your venous placement.

But Venus and Scorpio, if you ran it through a calculator with your birth time and everything, then that is your venous sign. But if you wanna see the house and everything, then you can go on astro.com and it'll, and it should give you that. Thank you. Mm-hmm. Okay. So. Here we are. This is slide. So yeah, so say we want our love life to improve.

We can place Venus on the descendant an angle that may attract a partner. The sign, the sign Venus is in will tell you what kind of energy that partner may have or what you can expect to deal with should you attract a partner. Another thing that we have to consider when we're working with Astrocartography is how Venus is aspected in our chart.

An aspect is another aspect of astrology. And aspects show us the relationships between planets. So Venus could be in Pisces, right, which is like a sign that it favors. Could be in Scorpio, which is a sign that it doesn't favor. But Venus could be in a really good aspect with a planet. And that good aspect can give it some juice, right?

It's kind of like fuel in a car. It's kind of like a way out of the. Complicated energy, or your Venus could be in a really good sign like Pisces, but it could have a bad aspect. And so that adds a layer of difficulty. So that's why when we're doing Astrocartography, it's so important to know our natal charts first, to really know what planet are you really working with.

Does that make sense guys? Okay. So if we place Venus on the Midheaven, right? Midheaven is like exposure. What we like, what we're recognized for our reputation. You can become a magnet for veian things and this could actually be really good for like if you're pursuing an education or if you want to like be really magnetic or attractive or like just attract money even.

It's like a good thing to work with a midheaven with Venus because Venus is about money. Venus is about like stuff, you know, it's about luxuries and because the 10th house is so exposed, you're placing Venus in the brightest part of the chart. But again, you have to look at the rest of your chart and you also have to know yourself and be like, well, what is my relationship to attention?

Because that's something that could come up for you if your place, if you're making a planet super visible, then you also have to reckon with your relationship to visibility. Do you like being exposed? Do you like being visible? Do you like when people look at you? Do you like it when people pay attention to you?

You know, how do you handle that? So it's a kind of like, be careful what you wish for vibe, you know? Okay. If you want to improve the stability of an existing relationship, you might place Venus on the ic because the IC, as you remember, is like the ground or the hypo gm. It's like the place where things are like really private and hidden and concealed inner world stuff, right?

So placing Venus there could be good, for example, for property, right? Moon really is kind of more of that. But Venus, it could be good for enhancing your home in some way, beautifying your home. It could be for improving an existing relationship, so improving the foundation of your life through Venus themes, right?

So maybe you have an existing thing and you wanna infuse a little bit more Venus into it. But then again, you have to remember, is Venus really Venus seeing, or is Venus not Venus seeing, you know what I mean? Like Venus and Aries is not the most venous Venus. So if you want like this, like soft, gentle, generous, stable vibe like a Venus and Aries in the fourth house is, is not, it's, is gonna cause you to like individuate actually, it's gonna cause you to, to be resistant to, to like getting settled.

It's gonna actually ven, placing Venus in the fourth house with a Venus in Aries will make you more unsettled. Right. So that's the thing that we really need to consider when we're working with Venus. And that's fine too. 'cause maybe, maybe you want to like spice something up. And in that case, Venus, in Venus in areas is definitely gonna add spice to your life in the fourth house, right?

Maybe you wanna, you want to, um, maybe you want to, uh. Make something move faster, right? Aries moves really fast. Venus rules Taurus. So Venus is kind of more like slow and graceful, right? Venus rules Libra and Taurus. So more slow and graceful. Aries is really fast. It goes, it knows what it wants. So if you're working with Venus and Aries.

In the fourth house, you might be thinking, okay, I need to speed something along in my foundation. And that could be a way that you, you work with Venus instead of it working against you, but then you also have to think about the consequences of like bulldozing through something or speeding through something.

Right. So these are all important things to consider when you're working with your Venus sign as like, what is the pace of the sign that Venus is in inherently, you know. Then, yeah, I mean, it's like if you want to improve the stability of an existing relationship, like you also need to, you need to understand like what the, it's like, it's not just like, oh, I want this to happen.

It's like, well, wait a minute. Why? Why is it in the place that it's in to begin with? Why is this thing that you're trying to improve that is already at the foundation of your life in that place to begin with? Like, what, what can you, what can you do? To become more aware. So it's not just about like, you know, putting Venus there and then like walking away.

It's like you actually have to do some, some digging and some work. If you want to improve your appearance and develop your style and creative expression and learn new things that make, make you just feel more in the flow right of Venus, then you can place Venus on the ascendant. But we also have to again, consider the sign that Venus is in.

Venus is more bountiful in certain signs. Venus is more contracting in certain signs. Venus moves more quickly in certain signs. Venus moves more slowly in certain signs. So these are all of the things that you're going to be inviting into your sphere of influence with the first house. Okay, so here's like an example of what Venus looks like.

Um, when you're working within an astrophotography. So if we refer to the first slide, this looks insane, right? Like this is crazy looking, but, um, if we look here where we're just seeing Venus, we can start to understand a little bit how astrophotography works. We have the map of the whole world, right? And we have Venus.

Culminating. Okay, so this is the line for Venus culminating. So this is Midheaven, right? This is like the height of the chart. We have this line over here that has dashes, which is Venus, uh, anti culminating. So this is like that hypo gm or the bottom, or like the, the ground of the chart, right? So we can see here that Venus is culminating through parts of, uh, America and like the West, right?

And the west coast. Around the West coast and through parts of Canada, and we see that Venus is anti culminating or, um, you know, it's, it's at the bottom, um, over here, like kind of in around, you know, between like India and the Middle East here. Um, and then parts of Russia. And then we see this curved line here, which is the direction of the sunrise and the sunset, right?

So we could see that the sun is rising over here. Or sorry, the Venus. Venus is rising, right? So it's kind of like these planets mimic the sun in a sense. Like it's like, like sunrise, sunset. So Venus rise and Venus set, Venus culminating, and then Venus anti culminating. Does that make sense guys? I'm trying to do this as like, 'cause this is so much, this, this is literally astrophotography is so confusing.

So I'm trying to, to really explain it in a, in, in a way that's gonna make sense. So Venus here is, is rising and falling. Okay. So Venus is kind of rising through an area where there's really not much going on. So, you know, for this person's chart, we don't really have a lot to work with when it comes with Venus.

Venus is rising here through, through parts of, um, of this coast of Australia. Okay. Right. So this is an area that we could work with for this person where Venus is rising and Venus is setting mostly through. The ocean here. So not much going on. It's kind of getting close to this coast in South America, but we don't really have much to work with here.

So sometimes, you know, it will be unworkable, right? Sometimes we won't be able to work with a planet and astrocartography, and that's just the limitation of this technique. So every technique has a limitation. So. Here's an example of what happens when we move a planet, right? So we have Venus and Aquarius, so we we're looking at it over here in this chart.

So we have Natal, Venus and Aquarius. We have a Libra rising chart, and we have Venus and Aquarius at, um, 18 degrees. This Venus is not bad in the fi, it, it's actually in a very happy, happy place. Venus likes being in the fifth house. Okay. It does. So this isn't the best example of like a Venus in like a shitty situation.

And it becoming better because we are already working with Venus in a pretty good house. Okay. Venus likes being in the fifth house. It's called the Joy of Venus. In traditional astrology, every planet has like a, a house it likes to be in. It doesn't necessarily mean it'll thrive there because some planets have like bad themes, so it just means that the house and the planet have affinity.

Venus and the Fifth House have affinity, but Venus has good themes, so it's a good vibe. But here's Venus relocated to the Midheaven, and you see how the midheaven is actually in the ninth house here. So it's not in the 10th house, it's in the ninth house, but we want to, do you see how it's like 18 degrees and 18 degrees?

We want it to be really, really close. Okay, so hopefully that taught you guys the overarching way in which you can use Astrocartography. Now, can I hear from the group what some people's goals are? If anybody wants to like, raise your hand and like, tell me what, what your goals are. I mean, I guess for me I would say like love and money.

So Venus. Mm-hmm.

And what is your Venus in? Mine is in Aquarius. In the sixth house. It's at zero, so, mm-hmm. So that means that we would be heavily working with Aquarius Energy, you know, which is a really, um, it's, it's a very intelligent, it's a very rebellious, it's a very unexpected, um, and social, socially oriented, and it, it can indicate, um, you know, this, this wish to be.

A part of something larger themselves because Aquarius represents like man and humanity and, and human welfare. So when we're working with this idea of like love and money, right, which are like really broad and separate themes, and yet they both belong to one planet. We make sure that we're really honoring this Aquarian signature and that you're not gonna call things in in traditional ways.

You're not gonna call love and money in, in traditional ways by any means, because Aquarius is not a traditional planet. Okay? So Kartika, you're raising your hand. What are your goals? Um, my number one goal is to like work on my self worth and self love for myself, and definitely the money part of like, um, having that gives me that freedom to make a choice for myself.

Mm-hmm. Yeah. So we would have to work with Venus in either the 10th house or the first house, right? Because the first house is, um. The first house is about your self confidence and the light that you emit, and then the 10th house is like the house of your karma. It's the house of like the culmination of your actions, you know?

So it's about what you are putting out into the world and then how the world receives it. Mm-hmm. So Venus could be placed in either of those places. But you said your Venus is in Scorpio. So my Venus is, and it's in the 12th house. Oh yeah. Well, you know, 12th House, Venus actually is not so bad. A 12. The Venus can thrive in the 12th house because if we're looking at the canon, like the structure of the chart here we have the chart here.

The first house represents the sunrise. And the thing is, the chart isn't exactly like a clock, like exactly right. 'cause we're dealing with these planes like sunrise, sunset, and we're dealing with a sphere. So it's kind of like, it's not exactly. Uh, this perfect clock. But if this is the sunrise, and this is the sunset right here, the seventh house, and this is noon, that doesn't mean that the sun is just gonna kind of rise like this, right?

That's not how it works. Um, because it's not like we're living in a flat world. So the 12th house actually, weirdly, is a flip where, um, the 12th house actually represents the moment just before sunrise. It's, it's the moment just before the sun starts rising, and that moment is when no planets are visible in the sky.

Okay? But Venus is the brightest, brightest planet in the sky and is always really close to the sun. So Venus actually. Can be visible here, which is why Venus actually tends to do in this house that is actually viewed mostly unfavorably. Most people are like, oh, the 12th house is so bad. But Venus does really well here.

So it's nuanced. So when I work with each of you in, in our respective one-on-one sessions, I can really like hone in on what does Venus mean for you? Because you see, you have one quality of Venus, Scorpio, which is bad, one quality of Venus in 12 House, which is actually like expansive. So it's about blending those, those ideas and creating kind of like an A accurate and actionable.

Kind of portrait of your chart and seeing what it means for you to work with Venus in the 10th house or the first house specifically. 'cause Yeah, Scorpio themes are intense. You know, Scorpio is, uh, very separative. It's not cooperative, and Venus is cooperative, so there's a tension there, but, we'll, we'll talk about it more when we do our one-on-one.

Who else? Um, who else? Oh, Carol. Yes. So I have a question I want to focus on, um, attracting align partner, uh, along with, um, business and financial success. And right now I just checked, uh, on astro.com. It's, uh, the Venus is in Taurus in the 12th house. That's actually really, really great position for Venus.

So we would be working with a Venus in your natal chart. That's inherently doing well, right? We'd have to look at the aspects, right? We'd have to look at the whole chart. 'cause it's not just Venus that's influencing your life. Everything in your chart is influencing your life. But when we're working with Venus and Astrocartography, we'll find locations for you where we can place Venus in the 10th house, right?

Because this creates so much magnetism. For Venus, and Venus and Taurus is already like, um, pretty, uh, pretty strong. You know, Venus is at home in Taurus. So we would just be enhancing that natural quality there. We could place Venus in the 10th house, or we could place Venus in the seventh house. But again, if Venus has certain aspects, we'd have to be realistic about what you can expect when it comes to finding this person.

Because there, there, you know, we have fairy, some fairytale stories, I suppose. Some people have fairytale stories, but most things take work and effort. But yeah, Venus and Taurus is naturally just based on the theory of astrology, like a strong placement inherently. So we'll have a little bit of an easier time working with Venus, with you.

Right. Okay. So, um, who else wants to share what their, what their goals are?

I think Darren pretty much like, oh, sorry. I'm, I'm like everyone else. The whole stable, stable relationship. The, the money, the business, stable business that's successful. Um, so my Venus is in Pisces in the second house in the second, yeah. Okay. That's nice. Yeah. So Venus is, is exalted in Pisces. Um, Pisces is a really wonderful place for Venus.

It's, um, you can think of an exalted sign as like Venus being in her like BFF's house who's richer than her, and she has a sauna. Like that's the vibe of like Venus. And Pisces is like Venus is visiting an area where it doesn't have inherent strengths, but can borrow strengths from this other sign.

Because Venus is, uh, or sorry, Pisces is a sign connected to Jupiter. So every single planet in astrology has signs that it rules, and Jupiter rules Pisces. So Venus has a more Jupiter kind of quality in Pisces, right? So we can totally work with that and we could play a Venus. You know, in, in the 10th house.

So it sounds like most people are looking for something new as opposed to kind of like working on stabilizing something that's existing. So we're not really working with the fourth house for most of you, or sorry, we're not working with the, um, em coli with the most of you we're working with like these more visible or bright houses, right?

Or visible bright angles. Um. I have a little bit of a word bank here that can give you guys an idea of what your venous sign means. Um, so there are three modalities, cardinal, mutable, and fixed. Um, and it tells you which signs belong to which modality, and it tells you what the quality of that modality is.

So mutable is very mutable, as it sounds flexible. Cardinal is very intentional, and it's about being a leader. And fixed is about stability and really preserving something. Okay? And then we have the elements, you know, is your Venus in a water sign or an air sign, or a fire sign or an earth sign? And it kind of gives you the definition for each element here, right?

And then it gives you a little bit of a word bank about what your venous sign means. So since we're gonna be working with Venus, largely with Astrocartography, um, we're gonna really need to know what Venus means. Um, but the whole goal of Astrocartography is to have a way of, you know, creatively problem solving.

Right. Like we sometimes look at our chart and we're like, Ugh. Like what do I do with this placement? Like, how do I work with this? Or like, I have a block or I feel stuck, or like, why is this thing not manifesting for me? Or, we feel confused, right? Like we feel like we have this like idea of what we want, but then life looks a different way.

And it's important to consider that like we live under systems and under systems. It's really hard to. Um, feel entirely empowered unless those systems like favor us in some way, right? Um, and then when those systems do favor us in those ways, we have to consider, well, what does it mean to be favored within this system that has an inherent inequity in it?

So I think a lot of people are conditioned by things that get entirely in their own way, and systems are created by humans. So systems do. Essentially reflect the scope of our humanity, right? It's not like demons came here and created these things that we don't like, right? Like we are a part of the human family and our humanity is really, really strange and bizarre and crazy and sometimes cruel.

And so when we're living under this thing that we're not necessarily agreeing with, maybe we are agreeing with it. Maybe we're disagreeing with it, but we wanna survive. So we're just kind of like, you know. Conceding or maybe we feel like, you know what? I don't care whether I agree or disagree. I just wanna be happy.

I just wanna be happy. I don't care. I just wanna be happy and I just wanna do well. And if doing well means kind of. Going along this path, then fine. Some people are really rebellious and they're like, I do not like that path, and no one's gonna tell me what to do and I'm gonna do my own thing no matter what.

And we're stubborn as fuck about it. And so the chart can tell us, okay, well if you have these wishes or these desires or these things that you want. What is your actual inherent architecture like? Like who are you at your core and how can we actually clarify that to help you get towards these things?

Not in a blueprint kind of way where everybody gets a one size fits all solution, right? Everybody in this room wants the same thing, but everybody is gonna get those things differently or we have to renegotiate our relationship to, to those things, right? So doing astrophotography is an interesting way of kind of like transcending the li what we can perceive as limitations in our chart, right?

Or blocks in our chart. And we could take this planet and move it into a new place and be like, oh my God, this location has this energy that like, I feel like I'm missing from my life, right? And I can use this energy to feel more enhanced. Or to feel more joy or to feel more inspiration or more, more motivation.

Right? All things we need a little bit more of in this world. Yes. So does anybody have any last minute questions about this? Do you guys feel like you understand the, the role of astrocartography or what to look forward to or what to expect when we do our, our one-on-one? Um, if you guys have any feedback or notes or anything like that.

Oh, I have a question. Yes, Carol? I spoke to hey June, and she was mentioning like if there's not a possibility of actually moving across the world, that we can bring elements of that place into our house. Um, is that correct? Yeah, so I spoke about this a little bit earlier. I'm not sure if you came in a little bit late.

Um, but, uh, yes. So the next, uh, course is the feng shui course where you take what you learn in your astrocartography, and this is the example I used. Maybe we move Venus to the Midheaven. And your midheaven line moves through Cairo, right? So you can bring images or maybe even like goods from Cairo and place it on an altar in your home, which will be decided by the feng shui experts where that altar should go.

Given your goals. Given your ambitions, and you could even use things like. You know, the new moon cycle, um, or, or different like lunations to, uh, petition or to ritualize this, this, this thing, right? So yeah, that's definitely like an, uh, an option and I think that's how most people will be working with us.

Again, this is a, a way of innovating our relationship to our spiritual scaffolding. Right? So this is also about exploration and having fun and getting curious. This isn't about like. Solving problems now. You know, it's like the whole point is to like reconnect with our, with our playfulness, with our spirituality, with the fluctuating.

Mysterious part of our existence. Um, so, so yes. So that's definitely a way that you can work with it. Um, Tika, you have, I did, I believe I logged in late, but thanks. Yeah, yeah. Oh, sorry I moved on from that so fast, but yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. So it's, it's totally okay. No worries about that. There'll be a recording of this as well, so you can reference it when, when you have time.

Uh, yes. T. My question is that, uh, for example, if we are born in a certain location, but we have relocated now, um, into a different location, so does, does the natal chart change then? So the natal chart never changes, but what you will have is a relocation chart. So what we could do, and this is for everybody, if you've moved, like for instance, like I don't live where I was born.

I moved to a new country when I was eight years old. Um, so your natal chart stands as it is that is like the blueprint of your life, but with relocation, astrology, we can look at your present location and see what does this present location have to offer. For example, in, you know, I was, I was born in, in Israel, and my chart there I am a, I'm in my natal chart.

I'm a Libra rising, right? But I live in Los Angeles. I moved to Los Angeles when I was eight and in Los Angeles, I'm a Gemini rising. And what that does is it puts my son in my 10th house. Okay, so the 10th house right here. Is one of those houses that the midheaven can land in. Right? So it took my son, which was in the sixth house, which is a house that's connected to more struggle.

The sun is still strong there because the sun is a badass and can handle kind of like tough houses like the sixth. But the sun improves and gives me way more opportunities in Los Angeles with the sun being in the 10th house. So that's like just a real life example of how like you can move to a place and your chart can change.

It could change for the best, it could change for the worst, but we can certainly look at your relocation chart in our one-on-one and see what, what results it has produced for you. Okay, we are at the end of the session. Are there any more last minute questions? We can go five minutes over if needed. If anyone has any burning desires.

Okay. Does everyone feel interested about this? Like, is, is it, was this boring? Was this cool? Was this fun? Like, I love learning about this stuff. I just wish I knew more how to work with it better. Mm-hmm. Yeah, totally. It's really overwhelming. It's like, you know, it's, um, you are doing it, you are working with it.

Like you're, you're literally, you're literally right now working with it. This is part of it. I mean, at one point before I was like an expert on this stuff. Like I also was like, oh, what is this and what is that? And I just kind of remained open and super curious and then all of it. And it's like, if you're meant to really, if you're meant to really, you know, work with this in your life, you'll, and if not, the great thing is there's a lot of people like myself who.

Understand this very well and who can, uh, you know, should you choose to, can be your guides with this subject matter. Um. So, yeah, um, my name's Alana. It was nice to see some of you and nice to meet some of you. And, um, I will definitely see all of you individually. I have seen some of you individually already.

Um, but I'm excited to move through all of this with you guys. I also do private readings. Um, I believe there's like a link somewhere for my private readings, should you guys wanna do that. You can also email me. I should have put my email and stuff in the slide, but it's okay. Um, alright, I'm gonna stop recording and I hope everyone has a good night.

Thank you. Thank you. Bye guys. Thank you. Thank you so much. Bye-bye. Bye.
