Healing with Fascia Video Transcript:
Hi, everyone. Thank you for being here. And, um, I want to start by acknowledging you for, for being in the features container because this is, this is important work you're doing right now.

So good for you for being here. And tonight I'm here to talk to you about, the physical aspect of you because you're not only, Spiritual mental emotional. You also have we also have a physical part, right? And that physical part of ourself Has an impact on our mental, emotional, spiritual, vibrational, and vice versa.

The mental, emotional aspects of us affect our physical body too. so in that aspect, that's the, the, the access for me, to the quantum world is really through fascia. So, what does it mean? Well, first of all, who, who knows here what fascia is? Usually like not a lot of people know what it is.

It's fairly recent, uh, that people, uh, I've been studying it and we keep learning, on this subject, daily. and for me as a, I've been a massage therapist for 17 years. So working with the body, working with. thousands of people and so My experience from uh on this topic is very like it's like years of experience on myself and others So what i'll share with you is information about it and also like how you can use that in your daily life So it's not about just giving you information.

It's like Giving you ways so you can start taking care of your body, with having that in mind and mastering your body more. so what is fascia? So like, like Angela said a bit, like fascia is connective tissue in our body. So it's like a spider web that's really everywhere in your body and it's connective tissue.

So it's really connecting everything to everything else. fascia is fascinating in the sense that it's responding and it's highly sensitive to any internal and external stimuli. So what I mean by that, external stimuli, it's, it's, it's fairly easy to, to, to conceive. It's like you receive a hit here, it affects your physical tissue, like you see the impact on your tissue.

There, internal stimuli. It's also, because it adapts to your mental state, your emotional state, and it can keep some imprints of that in your body in terms of either kind of adhesions or scars, but also in, in terms of postures, the way you feel on a daily basis for, for decades. it will show on your body.

so that's why the fascia will adapt to, how you feel, how you think, how you're being. So then you can use that to your advantage because it's for good and bad. So, when you know about it, you can start implementing changes either from your body. Or from your mind, and both will interact with each other and impact each other.

So that's why we talk about quantum healing. Because, when you can free up some tissues that's been stuck for years or decades, when you have access to free that up, you can really, like, sometimes it's the missing key that allows you to access your next levels. Sometimes people do a lot of inner work, they work a lot on their, their mindset, their emotions, but it's like the body when there's stuck tissue, it can be trauma

when your body's been stuck in a loop for a long time Like physically when you can have access to free that up Like sometimes you can suddenly have access to your next level that you've been working on like mentally emotionally So then you can go from and that's Another aspect of it when a tissue is stuck with something from from the past or trauma or whatever That tissue the fascia it sends signals to your brain that hey, we're in fight or flight here So once you have access to free that up You're not in fight or flight anymore there.

So then you have access to instead of being in survival mode. You're more in thriving mode So that's why I like it. It it allows for quantum leaps You in your system when, when you have access to that physically, just for you. So for you guys, like, let's, let's do a quick self assessment. take a moment to, you know, be in your body, do a quick like body awareness scanning, and some of you, you'll be able to answer that right away. Like, where do you have. either chronic pain or ache or familiar tension or discomfort.

So maybe you know right away, but take a moment to go feel it and see if you can find something else too.

So just take your time to be connected to your body, see what's going on, like what feels like familiar pain or discomfort.

Another thing you can look for after that is where are you holding tension in your body for no reason? Meaning like, for example, a lot of people clench their jaw and it's like permanent. They even do it in their sleep. so try to see where in your body you're holding tension for, and it's not necessary, but it's there.

So try to bring awareness where there's something like unconscious happening.

So we'll use that later. It's just for you to be starting to be connected to your body again. again, quickly, my experience as a massage therapist, also I've done a lot of Inner work. I've done the work with, with Hagen here. and I'm the type of person who I, I practice what I preach. So I I'll never tell anything to a client or to someone that I don't do myself because that's how I am.

so again, what is fascia in more details? It's really, it looks like this, like if you're interested, you can, you know, Google or YouTube, uh, fascia, under the skin, I think it's called, you type those words, you, you can see videos, they put cameras in the body to see how the fascia is, how it moves, how it adapts, it's really like a glue, like an alien thing, and it adapts constantly, and it's, it's everywhere in the body, it envelops.

every organ, every muscle, every muscle fiber. It's really everywhere and it's also what scars are made of. scars and emotional imprints like fascia, sometimes it's called the memory holder of the body. And so you literally have physical memories, imprints in your body. And that's what we're, working on when you get some, some body work done.

and also energetic work done can also do that. so again, so it's really like a glue like that. And it's the white parts of your body. So when you look at the muscle graph, like, Everything that's white. It's like a denser version of fascia, but it's still fascia like tendons ligaments. It's fascia It's just different concentrations of what it's made of that makes it more tense All right.

So for the fun part of practical practical part for you we're gonna look at different body parts meanings. for you to become more familiar with how your, your body communicates with you. So there's ways to, have clues, depending on where you're looking at. So one, one aspect of it is the left, left side versus right side, or we can put it as, dominant side or non dominant side.

So if you're right handed, it's going to be more your right side will be your dominant and it will be your more, masculine or yang energy. So everything connected more with work, with taking action. and the, your left side will then be more your feminine side. You're more. Abstract and emotional, well, masculine is emotional too, but you know what I mean?

It's more like the receptive, feminine side. It's different, it's a different state. so again, if you're left handed, this will be, often reversed for you, but not like, fully. anyways, I digress, sorry. I, I'm like that, I can, Have so many ideas at the same time. So I'll try to funnel if if I'm not clear, don't worry You'll have time to ask me questions at the end or towards uh before the breakout rooms So if you have any questions like take note of them and I'll happily answer them later now like quickly you can have a look at those it's some clues that different people have Body parts can, can point to, different emotional states, mental states, things you're dealing with, for example, like neck issues, often we get, it's associated with, is your mind and your heart aligned, meaning are you really, what you're doing right now, is it really aligned with what you want to do?

the jaw, the jaw, tensions in the jaw, it's connected to so many intense emotions like, deep sadness, rage, and also everything that's not said that we keep inside. working on the jaw is often like really intense and delicate work because a lot can come up when, when we work with the jaw, a lot of people can't stand it, like it has to be done gradually because there's a lot of stuff in there.

the shoulders, in English it works, like shoulders, shoulds, it's a good way to remember it, like, the shoulds of life, like, everything, like, that feels like a burden, or an obligation, also associated with perfectionism, you know, you're, you're, you're being on guard, like, really holding yourself in a certain way, cause you feel unsafe from, from judgment, so it's all, people who have their shoulders like this, it's like, they can never relax, you know, Your hands like your hand.

It's about, you know, making things, completing projects, like bringing things to life. But it's also about, giving and receiving in all its forms, like love, affection, support. so when you have issues with your hands, those are some aspects you can look at to see, huh, what, what is it telling me? in your back in general, like the whole back, of course, there's different sections, but.

Yeah. The back in general is nice hold what you're holding on your back, but also a lot of the past stuff and also, relational attachments. That's often what I stuff I find on bodies like familial old stuff gets stuck in the back, specifically your lower back. We hear it kind of regularly in the body therapist work that's associated with money.

For me, I see it more because money is an energy, right? So money is just A form of, of security that we use or a form of, wealth that we use. but it's like, if you have lower back problems, this doesn't necessarily mean that you have money issues. It can be one of them, but it's, for me, it's more like generally associated with feeling, uh, secure or insecure, feeling safe.

And it goes with it. When you have a lot of money, you feel more secure, most of the time. so it can be either that or relational security, like feeling that you're supported by others or not. your hips, like the direction you take in life versus feeling like you're stagnating or you can't move.

Sometimes that will express itself as issues in your hips. it also can be an internal resistance to move, like your body and or your soul wants to go a certain way and you resist that, that can start expressing itself in your hips. the knees are interesting too. Knees are often associated with, with pride or ego, but also your ability to surrender in a healthy way, not, not submit or like, you know.

kneel in front of somebody, but issues can come up when it feels like that. When you feel like you have to kneel in front of a certain authority. either a societal one, or a parental figure, or your boss, So, yeah, it's like, do you have a healthy relationship with, authority. your feet, your ankles, like feeling like you, you can trust yourself to be solid on your own two feet and also to shift directions easily or not.

People who have weak ankles, like sometimes it's a repeating thing. It's like, uh, they feel, they feel unstable. So now you have this chart, like there's a lot on it. You'll have this. you don't have to read it all right now, but you can start looking like with the body scan you did earlier, you can read about the body part that's there if it's there, and start to look at which words resonate for you, because again, it's like, yeah, there's some meanings that can be clues, but really your own body.

You're going to be the one who knows what resonates and what doesn't. each part, each definition for, for each part there, not everything will resonate for you probably. So just take what resonates and work with that. Like do your own reflection on it and go get what you, you need to get from this.

I get insights and, and answers to some things. take this as, you know, clues and indications to, to assess your own body. Like again, like, like the work you're doing, with, with, with agent, here, like she gives you those tools, but you're the one who's going to do the work. for yourself to get to know your body and how it works and how it communicates with you.

And these charts are to be used as guides and helpers and to, to try to figure that out for yourself. So, uh, are we ready for breakout rooms now? You guys want to try that out? Try to, uh, analyze, assess, listen to your body using this. We'll give you just a few minutes. So we're going to talk a so you can start familiarize yourself with this and we're going to come back and give more info about that well I'll say something, I guess. Um, I, I've never really associated any of the things that Genevieve has been speaking about, um, this evening about how we hold things into our body. I've started to, um, learn a little bit about it, um, become, becoming more self aware and things of that nature.

So it's been very interesting, um, but to kind of see where the tensions we hold or the aspects of the things that we have been holding over the years kind of show up physically. for having me. It's very interesting things that I had never really noticed before, like, um, you know, it's like, oh, I guess I do hold tension in my shoulders that I've never really noticed before, simply because it's become so normalized for, for me, um, or, um, the fact that, uh, I think I put it in the chat.

I said, you know, when I think I'm standing up straight. I'm actually not standing up straight, like, I'm my back is actually my spine is actually off kilter. So I don't actually stand up straight. And it's not until I take a picture that I noticed that. So I was like, well, I wonder if that has anything to do with anything that I might be holding that, um, uh, you know, that takes the body out of alignment.

But, um, Where most people feel the tension in their jaw, um, I don't necessarily, uh, um, see that so much or the clenching so much as maybe others have, have noticed for themselves. Um, but there may be some actual tension in my jaw that I don't really notice. Um, uh, I kind of, I've, I've kind of actually been because I am a singer that one of those things is where we can't have tension anywhere in the body.

So a lot of my tension may be somewhat unconscious, though it's, it's very interesting to learn all the things and, and maybe be more aware of what things are actually going on in the body.

Cool. Thank you for sharing that. Oh, and being a singer. Yeah. Oh, it's so interesting because you have to work a lot from your, your diaphragm and your, your abdomen to really like project your voice. So you activate different. fashion chains in your body to do what you do. So, yeah, it opens up. Exactly. Yes, that's cool.

Genevieve, I had um, I'm recovering from knee surgery. Okay. I had a partial replacement done in January and It's taken me a really long time. Like I have a lot of physical therapy, but I had a ton of scar tissue. So they actually had to do a manipulation in April to kind of knock me out and just bend and straighten my knee.

And I'm wondering if my recovery has taken a little bit longer because one, my knee had been injured for several years. So I am an athlete. Um, I injured it while I was lifting weights and. I think there was probably already a lot of scar tissue, but I'm also wondering as far as the metaphysical stuff, you know, I had some very traumatic events.

Um, you know, I, I am a trauma survivor, but even in my 30s, um, I had a couple of traumatic events and, you know, I know the left side is the feminine, the receptive side. Um, so I don't know. Do you have any thoughts around that? Maybe why my knee became so deteriorated that it needed a partial replacement? So yeah, it's the ACL probably. It was my medial. They had to replace my needle. Yes. Did you have an impact? Um, yeah, I have a partial replacement. So, parts of, um, numerous parts of the cartilage were worn down, and so was the needle. well, yeah, again, yeah, like I said, the feminine side, left side, right side.

Again, it's like the way I see it, it's, it's guides, like, to start looking at what your body can tell you, but then, like, the interpretation for your body will be unique to you. yeah, we can say, oh, it's the feminine side having, like, a lack or too much of something, but it could be actually, you know, it's your other side that's looking for attention.

So again, It through like a more thorough conversation, we can, you know, make more connections and that it will be more specific to, to, to your, your experience and, all of that. And why for you, it's your knee and why for you it expressed itself in this way. So, again, you can look at the themes of. Yeah, authority.

Like again, if you're trauma survivor, often that authority was, was not good for you in the moment that happened. So it could see the connection there. But again, it's like, it's, it's really about taking like the whole body and your whole being into consideration, like that, that, that. That part that is injured, gives clues to something, but again, you're not only your knee, like you're this whole person that's about like, uh, uncovering the layers and making connections.

but yeah, definitely scar tissue. It's something that sometimes you need to work like physically to, to undo the scar tissue. and some people build more scars than others. So again, that can. Yeah, but I know that laser technology or is better with scars now, but also physical work Like I know I have I happen to have access to to undoing like scar tissue cords And I'm sure other body therapists I don't know where you live.

If you live in Montreal, cool. I can probably see you, but if not, like you can look for body therapists who can specialize in, in scar tissue work. often it's going to be either physios, more osteopaths, some massage therapists, some sports therapists. you can look for that. Like, if you find that your, physio work has been limited, find somebody you can physically work on your scars, to help on doing stuff.

Sorry, my, my, my internet went, I'm sorry about that. Thank you. Thank you.

So so to continue like, uh, again to have more clues about the body part. that's affected. You also want to look at, what structure has been affected. So if if it's the bone versus the muscles. It will have different meanings. just quickly, like the bones are associated with your, your, your deep structure, like almost connected more to, to your soul structure.

and the muscle, the muscles will be more associated to, mental energy and actions. versus like, if it's a blood vessel, anything connected to the blood, the blood is connected to your life force and your, your capacity to enjoy life. So it's like, do you let joy and energy circulate through your body or is it blocked in somewhere in some places?

Like, often people have. Heart conditions, coronary conditions, it will speak to, to around those teams. if it's connected to lymph nodes or the lymphatic system, lymphatic system is all about, cleaning up the body from toxins. So if you, if you're clogged up, it's like what kind of Toxicity, do you not eliminate well in your body so you can have physical toxins, but it's also like any mental, emotional toxins, like how do you, do you hold on to too much, too many grudges or resentment often can be expressed through having a congestion in your lymphatic system.

So those are our other clues, like what part. of the body, but also which structure is affected. and also how, how the issue occurred. Like, if it was an accident versus a long term chronic illness, those will speak to, different, aspects to look at. and again, like those charts or books about body parts meanings, it's to be used as guides and clues for reflection.

It's never absolute. Like just, just like learning tarot, like each card has a meaning, but you have to take the interpretation of the card inside the whole context of that person in that moment, and also with other cards you draw, so it's, there's, it's never like, oh, it's your knee, so it's this, it's, it's that.

There's many things to consider, and the more you get familiar with all of that, or you have somebody to, to, to interpret things with you, you can, you know, go at deeper levels and more precision in, how to address that part and free it up. And so you, you'll be able to play with that. Like, you'll have the slides and you'll be able to, you know, like I said, start being more in communication with your body and listening to it.

In a different way in a new way. And part of your homework that is here. that's a homework. That's an invitation for you to We take, take, like, take stake of how, how is your relationship with your body and everything physical. So, some people are super, like, healthy, exercise, food, they're on top of their game, and some people, not at all.

They just, they do their thing, and their body is just And it's okay, wherever you are, you can always, you know, build from where you are and uncover more. So hallmarks will be like, what's your relationship with, with your body and with health? What's your relationship with food and food also has many dimensions.

It's what you eat, but it's also how and in, in what, in what context and what, state of mind do you eat? Like do you rush on the side and. Do a thing or you do you take time to enjoy what you eat and also your beliefs around food like what is good for you versus not good for you. And also again, in the same view of that agents.

I've been talking about, like, no gurus, no more gurus, like, you can find any gurus about food and nutrition and exercise online, like, and everybody has opinions that contradict each other, and you have to do the work for yourself to see what resonates with you, what works for you. like, really. Try it out.

Like when I eat a certain food, how do I feel afterwards, like if right after and also a few hours after what's your energy level when you eat certain types of food versus others. So it's all about doing the work of and what's, what's happening. Gonna work for you probably won't work for the person next to you.

It's really something personal and Nobody can decide for you. What's good for you? Yeah doctors. Yeah, but you know what I mean? Get to know like really like how the food you eat and how you eat it how it affects your your energy level and also what's your relationship with exercise, with sports, what, what kind of exercise actually energizes you and makes you move in an optimal way.

Like for me, not everybody should run marathons and not everybody should heavy lift, like, or not build all the same. Not everybody should be a sumo wrestler. so it's really like what's adapted for you. What really energizes you and makes you feel better? what's your relationship with sleep and recovery and resting?

A lot of people don't allow themselves to, to rest and recover until they're burnt out. So it's another aspect of your, your physical, physical health. how do you manage your stress? If you do at all. other questions. Interesting. What emotions do you experience the most or the least? Because again, emotions affect the, the fascial system in, uh, like in terms of what circulates in your body.

If you're stressed all the time, uh, you secrete certain neurotransmitters and hormones that are associated with stress. And when you are joyful or relaxed you you secrete different kinds of of hormones in your body and both these types of hormones will have different. impacts physically on your organs and your body.

so that's another important aspect to to look at, like, what emotion some emotions that you're. Experiencing all the time and some rarely or never have a look at that. what's your level of vitality most days like rate yourself and see how when you start paying attention to that and you make some adjustments, how you can improve over time, how much vitality and energy you have on the daily.

And also, lastly, what addictions, if any, do you have? and addictions, again, it's a very complex, multi dimensional, subject. But it's, uh, it's also part of your physical body. So, that will be your homework, like to get to know your physical body and your, your habits, better. So, that's the end of me talking.

Uh, no, not true. Um, sorry. Yeah, other ways you can take care of yourself, do that exercise of scanning your body that we did at the beginning. Like you can do that when you wake up and when you are at work, take five minutes. Okay. How does my body feel right now? And then what does it need? Do I need to get up?

Do I need some water? Do I need to move a bit? it's part of getting more present to your body regularly until it becomes a habit of checking in, um, ways you can take care of yourself, of course, stretches, exercise, uh, getting massages or treatments or acupuncture, um, another aspect that, uh, I can also do, uh, it's remote sessions.

So again, like I said, the, the fascia is our, our access to the quantum world. Well, there's something, that's called remote sessions or long distance energy work. some people know that through through Reiki. So there's part of Reiki and what I do. But there's also like something else I can't explain exactly what it is, but I'm able to have access from a distance to do treatments.

So even if we, you don't live in the same city as me, I'm in Montreal. there is a way that I can, do remote sessions with you. I've done it many times and had some pretty incredible results, like some physical results. Sometimes it's more on the energy and it unlocks things and sometimes it's really like a physical result that we have and it can be pretty, pretty impressive.

So that's something I can do. And if you have questions about that, you can reach out. My, my, my contact will be available after this. Um, so yeah, questions. Any questions about either, uh, in general what I talked about or if you have a specific, uh, issue you would like me to, uh, try, try to help, uh, address with you.

I believe someone had a question. it was, can sitting in a sauna help release toxins? Um, it's, it, it, Yeah, saunas are good. The whole thing about releasing toxins, there's always, you know, arguments on, with scientists, like, uh, does it really do or not? Hey, if it feels good for you, again, if you, some people can't stand saunas, they, they, they feel lightheaded, they want to faint, they don't like it.

Again, it's, it's part of, Do the things that work for you. Try out different things. Some people love the cold showers, some people are like, fuck no. So it's really about trying out things, trying out new things. If you feel called to trying sauna, go for it. If you feel good after doing it, keep doing it. Um, yeah, and again, you can, you know, find information about that, like, what it actually does physiologically, um, if you're interested in that.

Or you can just stay with, hey, I feel good when I do this, so I do it. Can be as simple as that.

Does anybody have any more questions before we begin to wrap? Or anything they'd like to share as well?

I know there's a few things going on in the chat.

Okay, my next question to everybody. How is everybody feeling after? all of this information. You know, I think it was affirming a lot of us struggle with jaw stuff. I know I've been writing my teeth in my sleep and I'm trying to work on that myself. Yeah. Yeah. I was about to talk about it since a lot of people have that.

I can, I can elaborate on this. yeah, the jaw it's like I said, it's a lot of deep emotions. Like, uh, there's Anger, rage, fear, also sadness and it's often it's really intense because it got installed like pretty young. And it's all those moments, it can be big trauma or little ones, but just like when you're little and you want to do something and your, your parent or your teacher is like No, you're not going to do that and stop crying and you're not allowed to kick and scream.

So you hold it all back in. So it kind of got installed there for a lot of people. yeah, so that's why it's, it's, it's deep, delicate work to, to address because we go, we can go far in time, to, to undo that. And yeah, sometimes it takes. Many sessions to really unlock everything, but just physically like I can give you, I used to clench my jaw a lot too.

and I've started, that's why the body scanning is such a practical exercise because even if you don't have access to, you know, a body therapist who can help you clear all that and all the emotions associated. You can buy yourself. And that's why I'm giving you those tricks is so you can be more autonomous with your body.

it's about presence, like just to notice every day. Oh, I'm clenching my jaw right now. And to undo it. And then you realize. 10 seconds after it's clenched again, you undo it again. And that's the thing, like this hypertension that's there, it's been built up over time and repetition. So if you want to undo it and deprogram it, it's, it will happen through time and repetition of something else.

So if you catch yourself 50 times a day on clenching your jaw, Well, it's great because before you, you caught yourself zero times. So the more you do that over the, over time, like for me, I noticed after a few years, like I rarely clench it anymore just because I don't tolerate it being clenched. So it's by awareness that you're like, Oh, I'm clenching, unclench, unclench, unclench.

So then at some point it becomes, you notice it more when you're clenching and you undo it right away. And it becomes something more automatic that you do, Oh, I'm clenching, undo it. So it's really by repetition. So again, if, even if you don't do the deep inner, inner healing work, emotional work by undoing it physically, this will have an access on your mental emotional states too, because it's, it's one or the other, it's one of the principles of a Chinese medicine.

Like if you, if it doesn't work through the mind, go through the body. And if it doesn't work through the body, grow through the mind. So you have tools to use. in in both in all dimensions now, I just want to quickly share my story and the reason why I wanted to bring Genevieve Genevieve on board because this is actually a new offering slash new program that we have.

Uh, to kind of round out Hero's Journey. So I, I don't know if you guys saw my video with, about my, uh, my hands, my left hand. I, I joke, you know, I made a lot of Star Trek jokes because my hand fully can't close because of an injury that I had back when I was living in Austin, Texas. So for like 12 plus months, I couldn't fully close my hands.

And so, um, You know, Genevieve and I, you know, she's a former artist ways student. So I, I already had some context about her line of work and I kind of knew she did remote sessions, but I wasn't quite sure how it worked, but, um, I got in touch with Genevieve and I was like, Hey, my hand, you know, won't close.

And I've tried everything. I'm not in pain, it just literally won't close, and therefore I have trouble picking up items from the floor, I have a, I have a hard time grabbing things. So, she was like, oh, I think it might be like a fascia issue, and uh, I kid you not, she did a remote session for me. She just like, we just like, agreed on a time, like 2 o'clock, Saturday.

He's doing like lying on a couch for 30 minutes and then we send you some energy to your hand, but it's not just the hand. She's like scanning basically the entire left side of my body, right? Just because the fascia is like all connected and the whole time thinking like, okay, there's, there's no way this works.

It's I mean, cause I've tried everything, right? I've tried massages and all that. Literally within I think 24 to 48 hours my hand completely closed and it wasn't able to do that for a whole year and I kind of thought I was, um, like maimed almost. So, you know, just like how Genevieve says, like the left and the right side of the body connects to different parts of you, right?

Masculine versus feminine. The left side is mostly feminine. Um, hand, uh, controls like Well, not controls, but a symbolized like receiving. I clearly had some issues with some receiving or anger around having to receive certain things. Um, and the, the incident that initially even caused that injury was definitely connected to that.

The whole like receiving type stuff. So that's, that's a big reason why I brought her in because I mean, you know, we do all this woo stuff. But it takes a little bit of time to like see it unfold, right? Like this was pretty fast. It was like tangible, physical, uh, result just like given. So if anybody sort of like had long term ailments, um, even if you're not sick, sick, if you feel a part of your body sort of like achy, or, you know, if, if you're recovered from like a sort of surgeries, when taking a hot minute and you want to kind of expedite the process, there's probably like a more holistic Reasoning behind it all that western doctors can't tap into that is probably definitely connect to your emotions, too so, um So we plan on bringing Genevieve in as like the roundout expert for hero's journey and you guys are like The beta test like listener because you're y'all are all like alumni or currently in the program um, but yeah, like there are there are certain things that you need physical intervention for You know, you can't like attend Dream 10 times to like, close your hand like me, right?

Like, those are two completely separate things, but with something like this, It's a more tangible help. So, so yeah, if anybody wants to work with Genevieve, we do have a booking link in the chat. You could just even speak to her. You don't even need a remote healing session. It could just be for like just like chatting like, hey, like, do you have any ideas on what are some routines or habits I can take on to, to kind of pull the roots out of this, this long term issue that I have.

So yeah. Hopefully this was helpful. Um, is this a good private session to have to try and heal naturally rather than to endure traditional therapy? Yes. I'm assuming there will be a whole diagnostic first that happens in general. Yeah. Yeah. That's it. Thank you so much for, for your example. Yeah. It does make it more, more concrete.

Um, yeah. So in a session with me, it's like we, we can, by listening to you, like I, I start making connections and. I, I, I'm a bit psychic too, so I can make connections, uh, through what you tell me and the way I, I see you and with a remote, uh, session, I have access to other things that, with some clients that I, that I see here physically and in my practice, sometimes I, I add some remote work because I have access to other things there.

with the quantum, like you say, it's, the results are, can be instantaneous, like time and distance don't matter.
yes, actually, I do. Um, something you, Genevieve, something you said earlier, and it didn't just dawn on, it only dawned on me just a moment ago, um, uh, something about there's a difference between the muscles versus, uh, the, the bones or the joints, and, um, uh, there was a, there's a surgery that a family member had on the spine, and that it's affected the, the muscles in the legs, and I was wondering, is there, would there possibly be like another holistic roundabout way?

Because they've done the things that we've spoken about. They've done a lot of therapy, um, uh, physical therapy. Uh, and, um, it's now just doctors just say, Oh, it's just because you're old and there's nothing more that can be done really. Yeah. It's your life now. Right. So, uh, in the spine, it was in the lower back.

I'm, I'm guessing, Um, it was, it was a stenosis and I can't exactly remember which vertebrae it is now. Um, uh, but there, there were several, um, rods placed in the spine. Uh, basically the spinal cord had inflamed, um, into the, um, the spinal column. And so they had to go and reduce it, which they did, but the aftereffects three years later is still, um, it's almost like the, the, my family member like walks like Frankenstein at times.

Um, so they can't actually raise their legs fully. Okay, and how old are they? Um, they're in their 70s. Okay, so yeah, but still it's like Yeah, if you've seen a major difference from, yeah, there's definitely something that can be done to, uh, probably a lot of stuck fascia in there and, you know, fascia surrounds nerves also.

So then when the nerves are affected, it affects sensation, but also motor functions. Right. So yeah, and the, yeah, one first step could be to take them to a massage therapist or, uh, even sports therapist, like, but somebody, yeah, somebody who's got, um, thorough knowledge of the body, osteopaths, but I feel like it's going to be like massaging maybe will be more helpful than osteopaths because then, because massage can help undo anything that's kind of stuck.

And it's, it's surprising what a good massage can do. Yeah, versus probably she's done physio and yeah, you move it or it's been moved passively. But right, the tissues are stuck like this, you need to have them be unstuck. So then it frees up everything and then you can move properly. So okay, so we're actually on that on that path of doing more massage therapy.

So maybe that can alleviate some more of the issues to their Yeah, start with that and, and yeah, grab my contact if ever I can do something remotely for, for them, uh, I'd be happy to, like it's, it's worth trying everything, but try with, you know, in person physical therapy first and see how it goes. Okay.

Great. Thank you. Thank you.

Okay. It sounds like this was a success. So thank you so much Genevieve. And, um, my hand is just one of the many examples, but that was actually crazy though, because my, I really thought my hand was calcified for like 12 plus months. I
I will see you guys next time.

Thank you so much. Bye.
